Discovered River

Newfoundland, discovered by the Cabots in 1498, was already well known and frequented by French fishermen when Jacques Cartier landed there, early in the Sixteenth century. He arrived early in the spring after trouble with icebergs. Sailing on, he mistook Magdalen and Prince Edward islands for the main coast and so traveled north, exploring every harbor and bay.

A mirage led Cartier to believe that one large river mouth, on which he came was a bay and he wasted much time trying to map this supposed harbor.

Cartier made friends with some Huron-Iroquois Indians and kidnaped two to take back to France. These Indians told him he was in the "kingdom of Canada," though "Canada" was their word for "village."

The next year Cartier did his bit for history by discovering and naming the St. Lawrence bay and St. Lawrence river. He went up the river as far as the present city of Montreal.

NOTICE

To the Patrons of the Water System in Appomattox— I wish to make the simple statement that I will now be a partner in the new management of the water system for Appomattox and I hope to render satisfactory service; and will open an office, conveniently located, where the rents will be paid, and plan to have a service man living at the plant.

It will be necessary for sometime to come, to study the system, and no radical changes are expected. We simply hope to continue the long and faithful service of the former company, and improve service whenever and wherever it may be possible. Further announcement will be made at a later date.

Light From Man's Face Turned Into Electricity

One form of electron tube does for the eye what the telephone does for the ear. That phototube, as it is called, can take the light reflected from a man's face, change it into a current of electricity, send the current over a wire or through space, and change it back again into an image of a face.

Suppose the image were that of a germ, and that it were magnified millions of times. Wouldn't that give us the most powerful of microscopes? Dr. Vladimir K. Zworykin, the scientist who gave us television as we know it today, thinks so, and has built an experimental instrument which, when it is perfected, will enable science to penetrate still more deeply into the unknown of the infinitely small.

The potentialities of such an invention surpass prediction. For example, there are about 20 diseases caused by viruses—among them infantile paralysis, smallpox, chickenpox, the common cold, measles, rabbies, measles, mumps and encephalitis (the so-called sleeping sickness). What are these viruses? Nobody knows. If they are germs that lie beyond the microscope, as some believe, the electron microscope should reveal them.

When the electron microscope is perfected—a matter of 10 years or so—prepare yourself for another Pasteur. In some university laboratory, in some hospital, he may be already at work, a youngster of 25, doing the best that he can with such magnifying lenses as the most skillful experts can produce. What a bound medicine will make when he applies the ultramicroscopic with electron tubes!

Parent-Youth Conflict Due to Rapid Changes

Conflicts between parents and their children are an inevitable by-product of the rapid changes through which civilization is now passing, says Dr. Kingsley Davis, associate professor of sociology at the Pennsylvania State college.

"In primitive society, there is little or no change of standards from one generation to another," he pointed out by way of contrast. "Hence there is rarely any parent-youth conflict."

One of the biggest sources of family conflict today is that youth is just gaining full powers at a time of great technological change while parents are losing theirs and need security, said Dr. Davis. "Most societies assign different and complementary duties to each. Among us, however, there is inter-age competition since most positions are theoretically based on accomplishment rather than age. Arrogance and frustration appear in the young; fear and envy in the old."

In a general way, he added, larger families have a better chance of escaping conflict than small families, whose attachments are closer.

Fireproof Cotton

Fireproof cotton—that is what the department of agriculture promises, after experimenting with a burning match and an acetylene torch on a pile of cotton.

The burning match left a smudge but didn't burn the cotton and the torch burnt a hole through the cotton, but the cotton around the hole didn't even smudge.

W. J. Heenan, an inspector of the department, declared after the experiment in Charlotte, N. C., that in his opinion it was the greatest thing that has happened to the cotton industry.

He pointed out that the possibilities of fireproof cotton was unlimited. He said that the government has allotted 500,000 pounds of this cotton to a Charlotte manufacturing company.

Silence Is Life

Silence is not only golden, but is life itself to certain types of cicadas, or locusts, according to an article in the American Museum's magazine, Natural History, which describes the technique of the cicada-killer's annual "blitzkrieg" which begins in June.

This cicada-killer, a type of wasp, locates her prey by their singing, which is an unfortunate talent possessed only by the male cicada. Having located her prey, the wasp does not kill, but only paralyzes her victim by an injection of poison. The living but helpless cicada is then flown by the wasp to her underground brood chamber, and stored away as a future food supply for her young.

Cards for Room Numbers

The manager of the new Government Railway Tourist hotel at El Portillo in the Andes, not far from the city of Valparaiso, found himself with exactly 83 rooms for guests. Instead of numbering these rooms from 1 to 83, he has had an artist paint a large playing card on each door.

The manager claims that guests sometimes forget whether they belong in room 23 or 32, but nobody could possibly, even in the dark, mix up the three of hearts with the deuce of clubs. The rooms designated by the queens of all four suites are reserved for ladies, while the joker is found on the door of a large room used only when they have a full house. This large room is fitted with 16 bunks.

Sheet Erosion Destroys Fertility of Farm Land

That crop yields decrease as soil erosion increases is shown by tests made on farms last summer by the Soil Conservation service.

In tests made on five farms, it was found that fields with less than 25 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 51 bushels of oats or 27 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 25 to 50 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded 42 bushels of oats or 23 bushels of barley per acre; fields with 50 to 75 per cent of the topsoil gone produced 33 bushels of oats or 23 bushels of barley, and land with more than 75 per cent of the topsoil washed away yielded only 23 bushels of oats and 17 bushels of barley.

"There is an evident relation shown here between topsoil losses and crop losses," says M. A. Thornton, soil conservationist. "Sheet erosion removes the top, or most productive layer of the soil. With each inch that washes away, there is left a material that is not only less productive, but that is more subject to erosion."

New Worm Treatment

Phenothiazine, a new and powerful drug which is now being used experimentally for treating sheep and goats for worms, has been giving splendid results on flocks around Columbia. Flocks that have been treated twice have been doing splendidly. It takes about five days after treatment to clean the animals of worms, and all worms are killed, except possibly some tapeworms. Even the nodule worms are killed.

Town To Buy New Truck And Fire Siren

The regular monthly meeting of the Appomattox town council was held Monday night in the Mayor's office. After hearing a report on the financial condition of the town, and finding that sufficient funds are in hand, the council voted to purchase a new dump truck to replace the one now in use. The matter of purchasing a truck was turned over to the fance committee, of which F. L. Murphy is chairman.

Upon report that the present fire siren can not be heard in all parts of the town, the town council authorized the purchase of a new and larger siren. It is estimated that a siren of the desired size, to blanket a three mile area with a fire alarm, will cost slightly over $100. On the occasion of several recent alarms, many residents, and even members of the fire company, have not heard the siren, thus thwarting fire-fighting efforts.

W. R. Reynolds Funeral Held Wednesday

The town and county of Appomattox was greatly saddened this week by the death of one of its most beloved citizens and business men, William Ross Reynolds, 59. Senator Byrd announced today that he would strongly urge in the Senate the change in tobacco legislation which establishes the date of 1934-39 as the base period for parity payments for both flue cured and burley, instead of the present law providing for the base period 1919-29. This change would increase the parity prices of flue-cured tobacco from 18 to 22 cents, and of burley from 17.8 to 22 cents.

Local Firemen Get Certificates For Drills

Fifteen members of the Appomattox Volunteer Fire Company have qualified to receive certificates for completing a course in fire fighting, given by state instructor W. E. Hill, it was stated today by fire chief G. M. Dean. He also announced that the company would continue to meet and drill each Thursday night for another month, and that the company was devising plans to secure funds for the purchase of helmets, boots, etc., and to that end any and all contributions or donations so would be appreciated and put to good use.

Officers of the Company are:
Chief, G. M. Dean
Ass't. Chief, W. E. Hancock
Secretary and treasurer, James H Lucado

Drill Master, Robert Lynch.

Mr. Dean called attention to the National Fire Prevention Week now being observed. He said that fires took 10,000 lives last year in the United States and Canada and that property damage ran to hundreds of millions of dollars. The loss in homes and jobs caused undescribable suffering. Similar losses and deaths occur each year, making local fire prevention and fire fighting a major issue.

The fire company urges care in the use of materials that might cause fires. One should never smoke in an attic, a garage or bed. Ashes and garbage should be kept in metal containers. Furnaces and chimneys should be watched, and a penny should never be substituted for a fuse. Gas should not be used for cleaning. Wiring should be checked.

Proper precautions on the part of the public will not only help the firemen, but save the community.

Play Clarksville There Friday

With two straight victories to their credit, the Appomattox high school football boys journey to tomorrow to Clarksville to try to make it three in a row. Last Friday, the team played a bang-up game to give the Staunton V.S.D.B. its first defeat in three seasons. The score was 12 to 7. In the quarter, Appomattox came from behind to mark up the winning tally on a recovered punt fumble, a pass from Tuerman to Cabell and a line buck by Tuerman, Tureman turned in a sparkling game in the local backfield, and the entire Appomattox line played a great game, although outweighed by Staunton.

That Appomattox will have a hard game tomorrow is indicated by the fact that Clarksville recently defeated Farmville and lost by only one touchdown to Altavista.

Several shifts in the line-up may be necessary tomorrow. "The mighty atom," Ivanhoe Bryant, is out with an injured ankle, and R.B. Hodgens Jr and Buck Wallace will fill in at center for Chuck Ligon.
